Nurse-Midwifery Course for The University of Florida	Developed and taught an online, 3 credit course. The University of Florida was in process of closing out the program, but they had this one last course they needed taught. There were 10 students in the course who graduated when the course was completed.	2014
Indiana University School of Nursing	Developed an online Genetics for Advanced Practice Nurses Variable Credit 1-3	2013
Indiana University School of Nursing	For two years, 2012-2014, IUSON hosted two faculty from Liberia as they worked on their master's degrees in nursing so that they could return to their Nursing school and be appropriately credentialed to lead the faculty. As they were not the usual master's students, courses were developed specifically for their needs. I had the honor of developing two courses. Advanced Midwifery and Neonatal Nursing (3 credits), hybrid delivery with clinical Maternal-Child Physical Assessment (3 credits), hybrid delivery with clinical. Prior to the nurses return to Liberia, the University of Liberia requested that IUSON develop a Bachelor of Science of Midwifery Program. This program would allow more trained birth	2012-2014

attendants out in the small villages where up to this point, only village women assisted deliveries. An article published on the World Health Organization (WHO) website highlighted this program and stated that it graduated midwives and will help staff health facilities in the country Of Liberia.
