

CALL FOR MANUSCRIPTS:
Contemporary Issues in Contraception and Abortion Care

The editors of the Journal of Midwifery & Women's Health (JMWH) are soliciting manuscripts that address Contraception and Abortion Care for upcoming JMWH continuing education (CE) offerings. Accepted manuscripts may be published in a theme issue or as stand-alone CE articles.

The following manuscript types will be considered: Reviews, Innovations from the Field, Quality Improvement Reports, Clinical Rounds case reports, and Commentaries. Descriptions of the JMWH types of articles can be found in the Journal's instructions for authors at www.jmwh.org. All manuscripts should include a discussion of access to care and health equity.

Please send a brief description of your proposed manuscript topic and type of article to Melissa Avery, PhD, CNM, FACNM, FAAN, JMWH Editor-in-Chief, at mavery@acnm.org. The JMWH editors will evaluate the proposals and advise authors of their suitability. Authors whose proposals are accepted commit to submit a manuscript on that topic to JMWH. While proposals for manuscripts may be reviewed at a later date, they are preferred by November 4, 2022. The deadline for initial manuscript submission is February 15, 2023.

The editors are interested in topics focusing on contraception and abortion care including new methods or techniques, new approaches to care, topics related to specific populations or health conditions, and reviews of updates on specific aspects of care. Manuscripts may focus on a specific contraceptive or abortion method, and applicability for midwifery practice.

Possible examples include:

- New methods of contraception released in the past 5 years
- New approaches to older methods of contraception
- Novel approaches to providing contraception and abortion care
- Issues of health equity and access to contraception or abortion care
- Interprofessional practice in contraception and abortion care
- Telehealth for contraception or abortion care
- Gender affirming care and contraception
- Review of postpartum contraceptive options including those that can be prescribed post-birth and not require a clinic visit
- Update on contraceptive counseling and shared decision making for individuals experiencing reproductive coercion
- Review of methods of emergency contraception; non-hormonal and barrier contraceptive methods; intrauterine methods; combined estrogen and progestin hormonal methods
- Clinical rounds on contraceptive choices for individuals with specific health conditions or situations
- Guide to activism in access to contraception and abortion care
- Policy perspectives related to contraception and abortion care
- Innovations in midwifery education related to contraception or abortion
- Your ideas for topics!
